Barchart Real-Time Data Now Available through NinjaTrader™

CHICAGO, IL – June 18, 2008 – Barchart.com, Inc., a leading provider of market data and information, today announced a data feed partnership with NinjaTrader™, a leading provider of high performance trading software. With their newly formed relationship, users of NinjaTrader's trading software can subscribe to Barchart's real-time data feeds which are sourced directly from futures and equity exchanges. NinjaTrader and Barchart have implemented a complete web-based process for users to select Barchart as a data source.

"NinjaTrader users now have the option of selecting Barchart's data feeds through a simple online registration process," said Eero Pikat, President of Barchart. "We are excited to partner with NinjaTrader and for their users to have access to Barchart's data," said Pikat.

NinjaTrader software is a complete end-to-end trading platform serving discretionary and automated traders of futures, equities and forex markets. NinjaTrader is available at over 100 brokerages worldwide and is promoted by the industry's leading trading educators and providers of third-party technical indicators and trading systems. The NinjaTrader platform is free to use for advanced charting, analytics, system development and trade simulation.

"Partnering with Barchart.com is in line with our overall strategy to offer traders choice on their data and brokerage options," said Raymond Deux, President and CEO of NinjaTrader. "This new relationship lowers the cost barrier of getting advanced software with high-quality data into the hands of the retail trader," said Deux.
